Several wide-awake gardeners have recorded an experience to the effect that by preparing the soil and sowing peas in antumn-but so late as to preclude the possibility of spronting before the ground freezes-they secure a crop in Spring considerably earlier than by adopting the usual course. The plan seems worth trying.

A good many years ago a wealthy farmer owning several hundred acres of land remarked to a neighbor that he wished he could hire one or two acres for a buckwheat patch. That incident shows the regard in which this crop good man's scul yearned for buckwheat him. cakes, but he could not make himself productive acres on which to grow the raw material. Buckwheat is popularly considered the poor man's crop. It is almost always got in on the least productive land, often only half prepared, and at the last may be cut off entirely by an untimely frost. And yet there are few crops which will better pay for careful preparation of the soil.

Wine Making.

Grape culture and the manufacture of domestic wines being on the increase in this country, we publish the following directions for making five gallons of grape wine by a correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph: Express the juice from twenty pounds of grapes; rinse the pulp and skins in as much water as will cover them; mash them and strain them through a coarse cloth; add to this the juice and put in two pounds of brown sugar to each gallon. When the sugar is dissolved pour the whole into a keg, having the bung open, and let it stand where the temperature will be about seventy degrees until fermentation ceases; then bung up tight and let it rest for a month to rious gesticulations and wild cries. settle, when it should be drawn off quietly, the keg well washed, and the pletely insensible, and I resolved, whaturned to it, adding one pound of doing this depends on the kind and quality of the grapes. # Planting Orchards.

If it is designed to plant out an orchard this fall, preparations for it should begin as soon as possible. The land should be well and deeply ploughed, and, if possible, subsoiled. If necessity imposes the choosing of a location which is not a favorable one, from the character of the soil as regards fertility, some pains should be taken to improve it. To do this well, rotted compost or bone dust may be used, or all or either of these, with such additional supplies of ashes as may be procurable. Plow under, and mingle as well with the top soil as possible. Do not use fresh green manure. If you have no other, it will be preferable to plant your trees and use the manure as a top dressing afterwards. Decide upon the varieties and the proportions you intend planting, send your orders in time to the nursery, and do not depend upon any chance tree-peddler to take your order. These are not the proper persons to buy from, much less to make selections of kinds for you, even if they send you what they profess.

Swindling Advertisements.

The editor of the Franklin Register, in giving his reasons for rejecting a certain class of advertisements, says Years ago we were a post-office detective, and in that position we learned a thousand things about swindling advertisements that the confiding public do not and cannot understand. We learned that the old 'sands of life' clergyman is a burly, red-headed Englishman, who is probably good for forty years more; that all the gift schemes are the vilest swindles; that one smart rascal runs a dozen companies, and nearly all are located on Broadway, New York," etc. This knowledge we make use of for the benefit of our readers.
